Dear Doctor,

In Australia Registered Medical Practitioners can now prescribe unapproved medicinal cannabis products for the treatment of appropriate patients outside of clinical trials through the Special Access Scheme (SAS) or the Authorised Prescriber Scheme (AP) or Compounding Pharmacy Access Pathway. Before prescribing medicinal cannabis, the doctor will assess each patient to decide if the treatment is appropriate for their condition and individual circumstances. The doctor will take a medical history and a family health history. The doctor will also consider the patient's current medications and any problems with drug dependence and substance abuse.

The TGA has developed more detailed clinical guidance documents for the use of medicinal cannabis products in treating: chemotherapy induced nausea and vomiting, epilepsy, multiple sclerosis, pain and palliative care. You can find these documents and an overview guidance at <https://www.tga.gov.au/access-medicinal-cannabis-products>.

However, we understand that not all doctors have the required resources to prescribe medicinal cannabis and this is where AnodyneCann can help. Our registered doctors have all the resources they need to prepare carefully thought tailored treatment plan for each patient after conducting a detailed assessment.

We ask you to provide us with the following requested information so we can make an informed assessment that would serve the patient best.

Please note, your referral to our doctors is not sign of you endorsing medicinal cannabis, but simply providing them opportunity to learn if medicinal cannabis is a treatment option for them.

The requested information is to complete and sign the following forms:

1. Patient Referral Form
2. Health Summary Consent covering your patient's:
  - a. Past & present symptoms and indication(s)
  - b. Current medications & treatments
  - c. Past medical history including medications used previously
  - d. What treatments has worked or not worked
  - e. Known problems with drug dependence and substance use
  - f. Known allergies
